Too good to be true?

Zero tipping fees offered on garbage

By Dean Jones

BELLE GLADE — Glades area officials were offered a proposal that sounded too good to be true Monday night in which their garbage would be disposed of at no charge, a plant hiring 200 employees would be built and the City of Belle Glade alone would realize savings and cash revenues amounting to more than $1 million a year.

Kenneth T. MacAlpin of Municipal Energy Consultants, a corporation based in Palm Springs, submitted the proposal and made a presentation to the Glades Area Budget and Policy Advisory Committee (B&PAC) of the Solid Waste Authority.

MacAlpin proposed that his company build a two-plant facility on the land now occupied by the city's landfill that would produce methane gas and methyl alcohol from garbage, with byproducts of cattle feed and metals.

The alcohol would be sold to oil companies to be used in gasoline and the methane would be used to power the alcohol plant, with enough left over to recalcify lime from area water treatment plants, saving the plants some $15 a ton, and to provide the power for water and sewer plants.

The B&PAC heard MacAlpin's proposal just before taking up an alternate contract with BW Energy Systems, Inc. under which BW would get rid of the area's solid waste for a fee of $20 a ton. BW was proposing a process which would have a byproduct of an oil similar to diesel fuel.

"Do you realize," B&PAC member and Belle Glade Commissioner Tom Altman said later, "that this would mean:

- No tipping fee.
- No waste fuel guarantee. (The company said it would accept any kind of solid waste except hazardous wastes, which would be eliminated by law.)
- Lime reclamation from the water plant sludge pits.

- Enough excess methane for utility power.
- 200 jobs.
- An increase in property tax revenues of more than $400,000 a year.
- An involvement in the national energy program.

"I figure the city of Belle Glade alone would get a least $1.02 million a year," he said.

MacAlpin said the plant would be designed to handle 1,000 tons a day, using solid waste collected from sites within a 100 mile radius. He said, for instance, that he could remove garbage from the City of Clewiston for a $3 per ton tipping fee, at the city, and transport it to the plant. He said he would also be using citrus fruit from Highlands County and other regions.

"This is nothing new," he told the committee. "The Germans were using this process during World War II and they're now making alcohol from wood chips but when you do that, you're at the mercy of the market."

"We're after the fuel," he said. "We're trying to stay with a known quantity and we know garbage will always be around. Alcohol is here to stay. Gasohol is being sold in eight states, including Florida so this isn't a fly-by-night operation. Studies have shown that alcohol can be used to make engines 25 per cent more efficient and will give 30 more miles per gallon."

MacAlpin said the corporation will be headquartered in Palm Beach County and plans call for similar plants throughout the state.

MacAlpin also said the company plans to finance the plant with the help of federal funding coming from the U.S. Department of Energy. He said President Carter has already earmarked $20 billion for improving the country's ability to process synthetic fuels and $4.5 billion of that has been set aside to produce alcohol.

Solid Waste Authority Executive Director Tim Hunt confirmed MacAlpin's claim that the company has established contact with the Department of Energy and is working through Congressman Dan Mica's office when he said Mica's aide, Richard McBride, told him (Hunt) over the telephone Monday that Mica is interested and has an excellent chance of getting some of the funding.

B&PAC Chairman Bill Bailey said, however, that the proposal for something for nothing aroused his suspicions.

"I would think," Bailey said, "that it would be best to turn the offer over to the consulting engineers, our financial consultant and our lawyer to go over it with a fine tooth comb. We're about ready to go into a contract with BW Energy Systems but I don't see how we can ignore this."

The other members of the committee agreed and Hunt said he would work up a staff report on the

on 1980-81 millage

Belle Glade holds line

By DEAN JONES

BELLE GLADE — City Commissioners decided in a workshop Monday night to hold the line on property taxes for the coming year, with an eye toward further budget cuts to decrease the amount of taxes assessed and maintain last year's millage.

The commissioners adopted a tentative ad valorem millage of 9.25 ($9.25 per $1,000 assessed value of property) but try to find $47,000 more in cuts to come up with a final figure of 8.6 mills, the same as has been assessed the past three years.

The difference is that in 1980-81, the same millage will almost certainly represent a decrease in the amount of revenue for the city and taxes to be paid by property owners, a turnaround from the norm, when the same millage would mean more taxes because of improvements and reassessments on property within the city limits.

The difference is that the voters are fully expected to pass a constitutional amendment slated to be on the Oct. 7 Second Primary election ballot which will increase the amount of homesteaded exemption homeowners can claim, from $5,000 to $25,000.

If the referendum does pass, and the commissioners are able to find the cuts to maintain the 8.6 millage, city revenues would be decreased from $700,000 this year to $649,320 in 1980-81, the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1.

But the referendum, because of its timing, and the TRIM (Truth in Millage) bill is playing havoc with the budget process in Belle Glade as well as with other taxing agencies throughout the state and the property appraisers as well.

Because the referendum won't be voted on until after the fiscal year begins, and its language calls for it to become effective on passage rather than the more conventional following Jan. 1, Palm Beach County Property Appraiser Dave Reid had to submit two certified millage figures to the city, one in case the referendum

Belle Glade election races are now filled up

By DEAN JONES

BELLE GLADE — With only hours remaining at press time before the deadline for candidates to qualify for either of two city commission races in the Sept. 9 city election, Commissioner Tom Altman was still unopposed and Mayor-Commissioner Ralph Kirk and former Police Chief Charles Goodlett were still the only entrants in the other race.

There were reports, however, that another candidate would qualify this afternoon, sometime before the 4:30 deadline.

Other than the three candidates already established, who filed as soon as possible on July 11, the first day of the qualification period, City Clerk June Roglioli said that as of this morning, there was only one other candidate's packet out and that had been taken by Alfred "Zack" Woodard.

Woodard said Tuesday he would have a candidate ready to file at 2 p.m. today, after the Herald-Observer's press time. Woodard has said in the past that "his" candidate would file in the Group Two race already occupied by Kirk and Goodlett because he felt Altman was too strong to be beaten.

This will be Altman's fourth attempt to gain election to the commission and, unless a candidate files against him before 4:30 this afternoon, will be the first time he's been unopposed. He was 22 years old when he first filed as a candidate in 1974, turning 23 before the election. He turned 29 Aug. 1, the date the commission first met to discuss next year's budget.

Kirk will be trying for his fifth consecutive term on the commission. He said when he qualified as a candidate two years ago that would be the last time he would file as a candidate whether he won or lost he said he changed his mind after several people asked him to run again.

Goodlett, who served as both the Belle Glade Police Chief and Public Safety Director before retiring in January, is running for his first elective office but is generally recognized for his insight in city politics because of his 32 years as a city employee.

He talked as early as four years ago about the possibility of running for the city commission after retirement.

The city election will take place at the Fire Station on Southwest Second Street on Sept. 9, the same day as the first general primary election.

If a runoff is forced, and as the filing deadline drew nearer this morning, that is apparently possible only in the Group Two race, if that is where another candidate qualifies, it will take place the following Tuesday, Sept. 16.

Both the seats made vacant by the election are at-large, meaning the candidates may live anywhere in the city, rather than within a certain borough.

Horse trading fees going up

By AILSA DEWING

If you haven't seen any gypsies or other nomadic bands gathering in Belle Glade to do a little horse trading or tell a few fortunes, it might be because they couldn't afford the overhead: $1,000 for an occupational license.

That was the fee set by city fathers back in the early '60s which has been in force ever since.

If it was purposely set high enough to discourage any shady enterprise, where do the gypsies and psychologists? They are listed among the crystal gazers, seers and spiritualists in the ordinance and assessed the same going rate as the palmists and phrenologists: $1,000 if they live off contributions, $700 if they charge fees.

Monday night city commissioners will hear a first reading (two hours of it) of an amendment to the ordinance. The original ordinance, for the purpose of raising the licensing fees. If it is passed, the fee for the mindreaders of whatever persuasion will go to $1,310 and $875, respectively.

But City Attorney John Baker has told commissioners the entire ordinance needs overhauling and that's a job that will require months to complete, he says.

Presumably, in its future definitive version the ordinance will make a distinction between sooth sayers and certified medical practitioners, but that's only one of myriad complications in the old ordinance.

For example, someone going into the sewing business. If they intend to make buttonholes and do hemstitching, the occupancy fee has been $5. A $5 license was also required by anyone doing clothing alterations. But if they list themselves as tailors, the fee was $25. On the other hand, a dressmaker can set up shop at home and no occupancy license is required.

Baker told city commissioners at a recent workshop session that he believes the ordinance is "boilerplate" — one not drawn up specifically for Belle Glade but adopted in its entirety from another source.

Such fees, as the $500 one required by anyone staging a marathon walk, Baker says, are unduly passed to discourage such events as proposal by the committee's next meeting on Sept. 15.

Committee member Billy McKinstry, representing Pahokee for the first time in almost three years, agreed with Bailey that the proposal seemed too good to be true but added, "I don't see how we can turn this down."

"I think this (MacAlpin's) biggest mistake," Altman said, "was that he didn't offer us a tipping fee of $8 or $9 a ton." He added later that the offer has many benefits to Belle Glade and the Glades since in general that it would be a gamble the B&PAC couldn't afford to take by brushing aside the offer.

MacAlpin offered figures indicating the cost of producing the alcohol would be $1.03 a gallon. He said the company intends to produce 15 million gallons a year which would yield $27,750,000 a year at the market price of $1.85 a gallon, although he intends to sell the alcohol at a somewhat smaller profit than that.

Since part of the agreement stipulates that in case of failure, the plant reverts to the ownership of the Authority, Tim Hunt noted that under the worst of circumstances, the Authority would wind up owning the plant, along with the transfer station now being built.

He also noted the cost of building the transfer station, more than $700,000 now being borne by the Authority, would be absorbed by the company.

In other business, the B&PAC members:

- Heard the beginning of a reading of the contract proffered by B&S Systems but interrupted that reading when it became clear a major portion of the contract would have to be the subject of major revisions.
- Agreed to determine the story of why McKinstry had been dropped from the mailing list and Pahokee had been dropped from the B&PAC. McKinstry said he had simply stopped receiving notices of meetings. Attorney Jim Adams said he would check into what happened.
- The problem came up in September 1977, when Pahokee refused to ratify the agreement between the city and the Solid Waste Authority because Pahokee's cost of transporting garbage to the then-proposed multi-faceted garbage disposal facility would be subsidized by the other three participating agencies.
- Adams said Monday night he believed that was when Pahokee asked its role as a participating agency. McKinstry asked, if that were the case, how he had been a voting member of the B&PAC before the Solid Waste Authority, Palm Beach County and the cities of Belle Glade and South Bay.

Belle Glade team wins tournament

BELE GLADE — Three of four teams tied with 2-1 record, during an All-Star softball tournament between two teams from Belle Glade and two from Pahokee. The team that was leaving the winner and runner-up to be picked by a tie-breaking formula.

The Glade Recreation Center's Mike Underwood said the confusing situation was resolved by figuring out, after the games were over, that Pahokee's "B" Team and the Glade "A" Team were tied with 34 runs each.

That eliminated Belle Glade's "B" Team, which had lost all of its three games, and Pahokee's "A" Team, which ter said the policy, which would provide $5 million coverage for the $7,400 premium, provides liability coverage for the city commissioners and city employees in the event of a civil suit.

The city previously hasn't had such coverage. Some of the commissioners said they thought the coverage has been provided.

Carpenter cited an example stating that if the city covered the cost of a building inspector in St. Petersburg who erroneously issued a permit for a shopping center to be built in an area without the proper zoning.

Carpenter said the city, the building inspector said and the city would be liable for about $1 million each because the commissioners were forced to rescind the permit.

He said the coverage was available in a range from $1 million to $10 million and recommended somewhere from $3 million to $5 million.

Kolb qualifies

DELRAY BEACH — Richard L. "Dick" Kolb, a Republican from Delray Beach, filed his candidacy Monday in Tallahassee, to run for the Florida House of Representatives, District 78.

A civil engineering designer with the West Palm Beach firm of Kimley-Horne and Assoc., Kolb said he decided to run because he feels that the residents of the south Palm Beach County area need and deserve equal representation in the State Legislature, and that they "feel disfranchised since no legislator from that part of the district is currently serving in Tallahassee."

"I also feel that the incumbent does not represent the majority of the voters in this district in her views and the way she voted on many issues," Kolb said.

A resident of Palm Beach County for the past 10 years, Kolb is a graduate of Palm Beach Jr. College and Florida Atlantic University (1970) with a Bachelors Degree in Political Science. He is a U.S. Air Force Reservist veteran and a member of the Boca Raton Sunrise Kiwanis Club, is married and the father of three daughters.

Currently the Vice Chairman of the Palm Beach County Republican Presidents Council, Kolb has been active within the Republican Party for many years through local GOP clubs and numerous campaigns, which include serving as the county finance chairman for Jack Edwards' gubernatorial race in 1978 and campaign coordinator for Bill Bailey's Palm Beach County Commission race in 1976.

Kolb also stated that he strongly favors de-regulation of government control. "We now begin to turn our government around so that it serves the people again and not the government controlling the people."

"Individual freedoms have been seriously infringed upon; I want my daughters to have all the opportunities I have had," he said.

In addition, Kolb feels that his active involvement and participation in the local Republican Party over the past years qualifies him to seek his party's nomination for the Dist. 78 seat. "I feel my trust and integrity have been established and that I am the person best qualified within the party to face the Democratic incumbent in the Nov. general election," said Kolb.

Sade qualifies

Marshall Sade, former mayor of Lake Clarke Shores and Republican candidate for county commission in 1978, has announced his candidacy for county commissioner from district 3.

The former mayor, vice-mayor and councilman is also an elected member of the republican executive committee. He has been a vocal proponent of less government and more individual responsibility.

A working pharmacist, he owns his own pharmacy on Lake Worth Road in suburban Lake Worth.

He said his past campaign stressed an open mind to county problems, easy access to county offices and officers, both elected and appointed.

He has opposed unionizing of county employees, pointing out the vast amount of problems that striking public employees bring to the public, who pay their salaries.

He is in strong favor of using beach bond monies to purchase new beaches and parks rather than using those dollars to develop existing parks. Sade also wants the contingency fund to be used only for emergencies, not for individual pet projects.

Sade is married to his wife of 24 years, who teaches at Forest Hill Elementary School. His older daughter is also a teacher; his young daughter is a senior at Forest Hill High School; his son is in the United States Air Force stationed at Homestead A.F.

Opinion

BY DEAN JONES

"We have met the enemy and they are us," was one of the greatest quotes to come out of the mid-20th century so far as I'm concerned, rivaling Churchill's comment of "Never give an inch." I think about the RAF during the Battle of Britain.

The first quote, of course, was made by Walt Kelly, the creator of Pogo Possum, who is running for President. I was overjoyed to discover this week...Pogo is running, I mean, not Kelly. I think it's time we put a marzipan in the White House, especially when it's someone like Pogo, who has his head together to the point he'd rather go fishing.

"Gimme someone," to misquote Big Julius (Cesar, that's who), "who sleeps all the time and eats all the time and don't think about nothing" at no time.

That's as opposed to someone, "who has that lean and hungry look. Oh, he's sippin' that Air Wick and nibblin' that No-Doz and sits in the little house behind the house and meditates," not to mention someone tired of growing peanuts or hostin' Death Valley Days.

And all that's why I was so glad to get the flyer for Pogo Headquarters the other day talking up the Pogo for President campaign.

And what is the Pogo for President campaign? Thought you'd never ask. "Basically," the campaign literature says, "for Pogo to put down his fishing pole and take up the banner and prospect of national office. The campaign is likewise a nationwide effort to get some of the millions of people who never bother to vote to put down their own fishing poles and participate in the elections. Finally, it is a golden opportunity for Pogo-lovers of every political stripe to once again enjoy Pogo's humorously innocent views of the American political process."

One thing about it, while he and it is impossible to find an innocent involved in American politics today, the whole process is humorous...at least when it's not boring to the point of being mind-stallifying.

And anybody who doesn't believe that didn't watch more than five minutes of either one of the political conventions or pay the slightest attention to any of the presidential primaries.

Pogo is not yet actually running for President...the release goes on, "and, in fact, has gone fishing. This hasn't deterred most of his swamp followers however; several of whom are already diving up the assorted cabinet, sub-cabinet and pantry positions which they believe are rightfully theirs."

These guys better watch it. They're getting uncomfortably far away from humor for humor's sake and uncomfortably close to Coke, the real thing...which is somewhere close to the Atlanta White House, or so I've been told.

"Pogo is a native-born American marzipan of the genus Eldefishidae. This allows him to be both didactic, delphic - obvious qualities for any Presidential candidate (sadly lacking in the Democratic, Republican, Libertarian or Andersonian candidacies). Pogo also has extensive past political experience, including two prior presidential efforts in 1962 and 1966. (That probably proved a poor idea...but a popular general because those who preferred Pogo were beaten out by those who like him.) Pogo is good, kind, considerate, thrifty, patriotic, honest, tolerant, fair and, above all, reluctant. He also has a prehensile tail to help him get a handle on world affairs. Finally, unlike some past presidential prospects who were merely born in a log cabin, Pogo was actually born in a log. That fact, we imagine, makes him, or it or both, true Presidential timber."

And what are Pogo's positions? "His favorite position is quietly sitting by the banks of a bayou waiting on catfish. He allows as how his positions on domestic and world affairs will be more fully developed as his supporters more fully discover his campaign plans for him. His position on catfish, however, remains the same: they should be lined up neatly, fin to gill, in a fryin' pan large enough to keep them out of office."

I'll have to admit, that's my position on catfish. I like 'em but would you want your daughter to marry one?

Too good?

When something sounds too good to be true, it usually is and it behooves responsible persons to take a cautious attitude to such offers...but to turn down or even delay too long on taking action on such an offer could be just as imprudent as a number of Cincinnati residents a few years ago.

Just on a lark, and to get their reactions, a well-off resident of that Ohio city decided several years ago to try an experiment.

He went down to the local bank, withdrew a stack of $50 bills (and this was when $50 was a week's wages for a lot of people), took up a position on a downtown street corner and offered them to passersby.

There were no strings attached. He was just trying to give away money but in the two hours he stood there, only one person took him up on his offer.

That's apparently the kind of offer the Glades area was made Monday night, when a company offered to take all the garbage generated in the area without charging a dime in tipping fees.

Not only that but the area would get the benefits of bringing in a plant which would hire 200 employees, supply excess methane gas to supply line to area water treatment plants at a reduced price and power for local utilities, property taxes and an estimated income of $1 million a year, not to mention the prestige of breaking new ground in the production of fuel at a time when the nation's power users will be growing thirstier and thirstier for any kind of fuel.

Another side benefit will be the pleasure we can get knowing that by the production of 15 million gallons of alcohol a year, we'll have our own bit of sweet revenge on OPEC nations that now seem to get the greatest pleasure out of gouging us more and more for every gallon of gasoline and oil we import.

That's a lot of something for nothing and, on the face of it, has to be the greatest thing to come down the pike since indoor plumbing.

But for the overly suspicious, it would be good to remember one thing that never actually came out during the presentation, although it was implied...the fact the company would be getting its raw material free of charge. That's their benefit and it also benefits us, why should we complain.

The only thing left, it would seem would be to see if it's practical. If it is, the Solid Waste Authority members would be incredibly negligent to let it get away from them.

A point to ponder, for instance, is the sure knowledge that anyone who puts up $64 million to build a plant is darn sure going to know there's an excellent chance that plant will pay for itself.

If they want to pass out $50 bills, we'll take a double handful.

Remember When?

The Cuban count

The Cuban refugees who immigrated to Florida during the now-famous Sealift won't be counted by the Bureau of the Census until 1982, according to the bureau's director...but why should that be surprising?

An undercount by the census bureau should be something the people in the Glades should be getting used to by now. There are still people in the Herald-Observer office, for instance, who haven't been counted as yet and we've made no bones about it in print.

So how can we expect the bureau to count newly arrived Cubans when the bureau's numerator's can't find native Floridians who advertise it in the newspaper?

Letter to the Editor

My heart cries out to give an open witness to God's gracious loving care and guidance in my life for the past 79 years - Aug. 15 was my birthday anniversary.

My Christian parents, Pabokee pioneers, loved one another deeply. Thus, in our home, I first knew love.

I committed my life to the Lord Jesus Christ as the age of eight, so I know the meaning of the faith and answered prayer!

I know the joy of motherhood, having been blessed with a wonderful daughter and son who have grown into Christian citizens, also grandchildren and great-grandchildren and great-great-grandchildren.

I've had at my side for 50 beautiful years the kindest, gentlest, most considerate human being I've ever known so I know what marital love and happiness are!

For 50 years I have lived here in the great Glades area, where good people are kindly concerned about others. They have enriched my life through friendship and provided for me many opportunities and avenues of Christian community service.

And, because I've known all of these, I know what real wealth is!

To our Loving Heavenly Father God, be the glory! Praise His Precious Holy Name!

Our illegal alien mess

Dunk's Almanac

By H.G. DUNCAN

The judiciary has done it again.

A federal court judge in Texas has ordered the state to educate, at state expense, the children of the illegal aliens in Texas. The Mexican aliens — illegal aliens, that is — are delighted at this ruling as it will give the kids a chance to get out of the barrios and to earn more than $3.00 per hour," to quote one mysterious "Ernesto" of Texas. Now pardon me, but I must have misread something.

I realize how hamstringing our Border Patrol is in catching even an appreciable percentage of the flood from south of the border which enters this country illegally. I was under the impression, however, that following that megal mania, the entrant remains in a criminal status as long as he is in this country. His taking up residence and his procuring a job doesn't do a thing to change that one basic, crucial fact.

The obvious question is: Once the children of illegal aliens register for school, why does not the Border Patrol follow them home, arrest the entire family and send them back whence they came?

If this question reflects on my ignorance, yes, my stupidity, then allow me another.

If we are not going to ship these fortune-hunters back home once they are identified, why must we bear the expense of a Border Patrol?

Perhaps we should place "welcome" signs at 100-yard intervals along the border and disband the Border Patrol and make them transient officers so they can ensure that these illegally-entered rag rats stay in school. That would surely be in keeping with Carter's human rights philosophy.

and would immeasurably please bleeding-heart federal judges from the Mississippi to the Penitentes to the Colorado River.

Our laws on immigration have become so voluminous and complex that I doubt anyone, especially judges, understands them.

How is it possible that aliens can enter this country, legally or illegally, and immediately start reaping the benefits of our welfare state? They are admitted to VA hospitals while American veterans wait in line for admittance. They draw from the Social Security kitty without ever once contributing a dime. They go to the head of the long waiting-lists for federally subsidized "senior citizen" housing.

Last year the Disabled American Veterans (DAV) organization did a study and found some shocking facts.

Organization did a study and found some shocking facts. One of the Vietnamese boat people were a considerable number of admitted, former Viet Cong and members of the North Vietnamese Army. In case your memory has dimmed, these are the guys who were trying to kill your sons, fathers and husbands. The benefits showered on them by this government surpassed the benefits given to the Americans who fought them. Friends, that's weird!

In a small town in west-central Ohio there is a Cuban refugee who teaches Spanish at the local high school. She demanded that the township committee free grave plots in the cemetery because "I'm a Cuban refugee."

The recent influx of Castro's rejects have rioted over what they considered slow-moving processing so they could get out of their semi-continent and walk the streets of gold.

Dade county drivers' license examiners have been assailed by Cuban refugees because they had the temerity to require the Cubans to do like the rest of us slobs in getting a driver's license.

The caretakers of the Orange Bowl were in fear of their safety due to the threats from the Cuban refugees temporarily housed there instead of the gutter. A large group of Cuban refugee homosexuals is being well-met by their American brethren in San Francisco.

I find it most difficult to understand these things. I shall certainly have them in the forefront of my thoughts come election day.

Balky candidate threatens to sue Belle Glade over oath

BELLE GLADE — A would-be candidate for the City Commission Group One seat in the Sept. 9 city election threatened to file suit against the city when his last minute attempt to qualify ended today in a shouting match in the city clerk's office.

John L. Aberry Jr., who gave his home address as 1102 S.W. Ave. A, appeared in City Clerk June Boglioli's office at 3:15 p.m. today.

Mrs. Boglioli said Aberry, who came in with Alfred "Zack" Woodward, a Florida Rural Legal Services consultant, had already completed a notarized oath saying he, among other things had been a resident of Belle Glade for the past year.

When Mrs. Boglioli was administering the oral oath, however, Aberry balked when she reached the portion concerning the residency requirement, saying he has been a resident for "a month."

Aberry and Woodward then left the office and returned at about 3:40 p.m., telling Mrs. Boglioli they would, "see you in court."

In the meantime, Mrs. Boglioli had called City Attorney John Baker, who told her she couldn't complete the oath. Baker came to Mrs. Boglioli's office and, when Aberry and Woodward returned, said he was representing her.

Woodard refused to talk to Baker however, and Mrs.

Boglioli was letting Baker speak for her.

Woodard and Aberry left the second time and returned shortly thereafter, throwing the written oath and other forms on Mrs. Boglioli's desk and said they considered Aberry in the race against incumbent Commissioner Tom Altman.

As of 4:30 p.m., the closing time, Baker, Altman and Mrs. Boglioli were conferring in Mrs. Boglioli's office.

Child's consent form available

BELLE GLADE — It's impossible, by their nature, to make complete plans to cover possible emergencies but a new form recently drawn up by Glades General Hospital can make it a lot easier to get emergency room treatment for children.

According to state law, the only situation in which a child can be treated by a doctor, without the consent of the parents or legal guardian, is in a life and death case, according to Amy Y. Tecosky, the hospital public information officer.

"(An emergency) can happen," Mrs. Tecosky said, "that one time you leave your child with a neighbor, grandparent, brother or sister or a sitter. The sitter rubs the child to the local hospital emergency room only to discover that the hospital cannot render treatment."

Mrs. Tecosky said the law allows for one ironic situation most people wouldn't consider.

She said the parents of a child can give consent that child but if a minor is the unwed mother of a child, she can give permission to treat her child but she would have to gain consent of her parent or guardian before she could be treated.

Mrs. Tecosky said that

Funeral service held

NORMIE SANDERSON

BELLE GLADE — Funeral services for Noble Sanderson, a resident of the Glades since 1932, were held Monday, Aug. 18 at the Wetherington Chapel in Pahokee with the Rev. Sherrill Tillery officiating.

Mrs. Sanderson, 75, was a native of Wheeler County, Georgia and made her residence at 1600 N.W. Ave. F Place. She was a member of Pahokee Chapter #184, Order of the Eastern Star.

Survivors include her husband, Nolan Sanderson; three sons, John E. White Sr. of Belle Glade, Truitt M. White Sr. of LaBelle and Edward Lamar Wynn of Pahokee; a daughter, Mary Frances Hart of Belle Glade, 16 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Palbearers were her grandsons. Wetherington Funeral Home of Pahokee was in charge of arrangements.

situation wouldn't apply, however, if the minor parent is married.

To answer the problem, Mrs. Tecosky said, the hospital has come up with a prior consent form, which can be filled out in advance, while there's no emergency, while the form can be placed on file at the hospital. A copy would be kept by the parents.

When the parents leave their child with a sitter, they make sure the sitter has the copy. The form authorizes the letter bearer to provide the needed consent to treat the child and provides various bits of needed information, such as the doctors to be called in an emergency, medication the child is taking, allergies and the date of the last tetanus shot.

The form also stipulates the parents will be responsible for the costs of the treatment and certifies if the child falls under an insurance plan.

Absent ballots ready

Absentee ballots for the Sept. 9 primary election are now available for those voters who expect to be out of town or otherwise unable to go to the polls on election day, according to Palm Beach County Supervisor of Elections Jackie Winchester.

Glades area residents can pick up the ballots at either the County Glades Office Building or the main office at 810 Datura St. in West Palm Beach.

Mrs. Winchester said any voter who will be out of town or unable to go to the polls can also get an absentee ballot by calling her office at 996-5566 or the local office at 996-6800. Mrs. Winchester said her office is also still registering voters for the Nov. 4 general election, although the voter books are closed for the two primaries.

The mobile registration unit will be in the Glades, for the third time, on Aug. 30, when it is slated to be at the Glades Plaza from 10 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. in Belle Glade and from 3:30 to 8 p.m. in Pahokee, when it takes up a position in the parking lot of the Thruway Supermarket.

Farm Bureau speech contest announced

GAINESVILLE — "Agriculture — America's Lifeline" will be the topic of Florida Farm Bureau Federation's (FFBF) youth leadership contest.

The statewide contest is open to high school students in grades 9 through 11. Farm Bureau membership is not a requirement, according to the FFBF president.

"The future of agriculture depends upon the encouragement of all our youth to investigate and understand the problems facing agriculture today," said Walter J.

Kantz, head of the $1,000 member-family general farm organization.

Each county Farm Bureau will be permitted to sponsor one participant from their county, Kantz said. High schools will be encouraged to involve students in the county competition, he added.

The winner will be sent to the American Farm Bureau Federation 1986 Youth Leadership Conference in Missouri at FFBF's expense.

For more information, contact your local county Farm Bureau.

He said the entry fee is $10 for singles and $5 per partner in doubles competition, with a deadline for entries set at noon, Sept. 15. Entry forms may be picked up at the Recreation Department.

Road Rallye planned

BELLE GLADE — An overnight road rallye is being planned for Sept. 13-14 by the City Recreation Department, according to Rallye Master Joe Fay.

"The cost is $55 per couple," Fay said, "which covers entrance fee, hotel room and the evening meal on Saturday. As in all our rallyes, awards will be given for first, second and third place finishes."

Fay said the city is required to make advanced reservations at the overnight stop so a pre-registration reply is necessary by Sept. 5.

He said the first car will leave Belle Glade City Hall parking lot at 9 a.m. on Saturday, Sept. 13. Cars should be at the parking lot no later than 8:30 a.m. that morning. Entries can expect to be back in Belle Glade by 3:30 p.m. Sunday.

Nessmith files candidacy

PAULA NESSMITH

Paula Nessmith of Tequesta is one of the candidates for the District One of Palm Beach County School Board seat.

She said she has been a resident of Tequesta since 1962 and her husband, Al, is a local dentist. The Nessmiths have three children, one who graduated this year and the other two now enrolled in Jupiter Middle and High Schools.

"I believe I am well qualified to serve as a School Board Member," she said, "Because of my past experience as a volunteer in the Palm Beach County School System. If elected, I will have the time and the desire to be available to the people I serve, the school centers and I will fully carry out all school board assignments."

"My concern," Mrs. Nessmith said, "is that all students in Palm Beach County be offered excellence in education. We must provide classroom space, sufficient materials for learning, discipline and adequate employee salaries. School and community relationships need to be improved, with parents becoming more aware of their local schools, and working more closely with them. We need continued interest in, and support for the Community Schools."

Mrs. Nessmith has been an active volunteer in the Jupiter schools for the past 15 years. She has served on the Jupiter Elementary Advisory Committee, a past president and past secretary of the Elementary School PTA, a member of the Middle School PTA and has served on the Jupiter High School Advisory Committee for five years.

J. D. PATRICK, coach of the BG's presents Mrs. Lucille Wells of the Rainbow Inn a plaque of appreciation for sponsoring the team in youth softball league.

Project Rescue-- after school tutorial program lifts grades

By ALMA HENRY
PAHOKEE — "My mother and I are more than just mother and son, we are partners. We study together daily," was just one of the many sentiments echoed by students enrolled in the Project Rescue Home-Study Program.

Project Rescue an alternative educational program established in 1977 through the efforts of a group of concerned citizens of Palm Beach County who felt obligated to become involved in helping to solve the educational, social, and human problems brought to focus by minimum competency testing in the county schools. Seven learning skills centers were established to offer after school tutorial services to students in grades 4 through 12.

For the past two years,

Project Rescue has operated two centers in the Glades. At East Lake Middle School in Pahokee and Lake Shore Middle School and The Elks Club in Belle Glade.

Mrs. Elizabeth Munnings, executive director of the program said each center operates as a supportive supplementary alternative to the County Public School system.

"Since we arrived in the Glades two years ago, the community's support has grown daily and as a result many of the students who registered at the center as underachievers are among some of the top students in their class," she said.

Mrs. Munnings said emphasis is placed on enhancing self concept, health and vocational awareness.

Funded by the Comprehensive Employment Training

Act, approved by the Palm Beach County Commission and endorsed by the Palm Beach County School Board, Mrs. Munnings said all services of Project Rescue are provided without charge.

Students can be referred to Project Rescue by the school's principal, counselors, parent or even the student if he or she feels they can benefit by the center may enroll.

Mrs. Munnings said students are accepted without regard to race, creed, color, age, religion or national origin and a highly professional staff operates each center.

The center's each have a director, administrative assistant, social worker, teachers, teacher aides, and parent aides and are backed by a psychologist, health specialist, research evaluator and vocational counselors in addition to support coming from consultants and volunteers from each community.

In Belle Glade, Willie McDonald is serving as the center director.

"During the summer months, Mr. McDonald and his staff worked during the morning and evening hours with students at the Everglades Lodge at 416 S.W. Ave. C," said Munnings.

"However with school scheduled to begin next week, the hours will be changed to 5 to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday," she added.

Roosevelt Mitchell is director of the Pahokee Center, and classes are held from 3 to 9 p.m. also, at East Lake Middle School.

For the past ten weeks, special home-study program, said Munnings.

"Each student had to complete a lesson a week, which the student mailed to a special center. In a matter of days the students received a letter addressed to them containing the students' grade on the lesson," she said.

This special project funded for the first time this spring served as a means to bring parents and students closer together and to develop family awareness of the necessity for education, she added.

The ten week series geared to each student's grade level on a national level. Mrs. Munnings said also was designed to help build self esteem for the student.

At a luncheon held at the Holiday Inn in Belle Glade Saturday, Project Rescue honored students and their parents enrolled in the project. Commissioner Bill Bailey, representative of the Glades, area, Daniel Bythwood, Human Relation Counselor with Palm Beach County School spoke at the luncheon.

Bythwood told the group he was honored to have been invited to attend the luncheon and speak before the group but wished more parents could have participated in the program, especially fathers.

"Students will strive to obtain seemingly impossible goals if they know their parents are supporting them," said Bythwood.

Commissioner Bailey said he was pleased to have the approval of the county commissioners behind the project.

During the luncheon, Mrs. Munnings and Walter T.

Smith, informative officer and assistant director of the program presented certificates to students completing the project.

Students receiving certificates were Juan Perryman, Sheronda D. Brown, Vonzille Patterson, Maria G. Brown, Taschel Jones, Lovonda Jones, Katurah Williams, John Davis, Connie Boldin, Tarshelka Rowe, Eddie McCall, Christina Brown, Edward Patterson, Tonya Royals, Charissa West, Leatrice Cross, Carmen Weatherington, Willie Davis, Jr., Willie Robinson, Melanie Bolden, and Twila Bolden.

The students also received a patch and a t-shirt for their efforts.

Mrs. Munnings said persons interested in enrolling in the fall program may visit either center in the Glades and enroll and contact the administrative office at 616 Iris Street, West Palm Beach or call 305-888-2555.

CCE makes days brighter for the Glades elderly

By AILSA DEWING

The lives of the elderly can be a bleak succession of day-in-day-out loneliness, pain, and uselessness. Too little strength to cook, clean, or care for themselves. No appetite to eat in solitude.

Desperate to stay at home and preserve some semblance of independence, they live with a philosophy of "Maybe tomorrow I'll feel better and I can do a little something."

Meanwhile, home turns to hovel as dirt and litter collect. The unwashed clothes gather, the bed goes unchanged, and garbage is unemptied.

And how does it end? With a fall or an illness that leaves them alone and helpless, praying for help that may come too late?

There is help, however, here and now, and it's being provided by Community Care for the Elderly. From the center at 1525 NW Avenue L in Belle Glade, helping hands reach out to aid the old and incapacitated with a variety of services.

No longer need the homebound feel isolated, for example. They know that everyday the phone will ring with a reassuring call from Annie Boldin. Four hours every day Mrs. Boldin is on the phone, checking to see if they are alright, ask if they need anything, and spend a few moments chatting with them.

"I've talked to hundreds of people out there and I've never met but a few of them face-to-face," she says.

Right now she has a "back-up" number — a neighbor, friend, or relative to call who will find out why Mrs. Boldin isn't getting any answer.

Each day two vans followed "Operation Concern" leave the center on assigned routes, picking up passengers in the morning to take them shopping, to the doctor or dentist, on whatever errand is at hand, and ranging from Canal Point and Pahokee to Belle Glade, South Bay and Lake Harbor.

Overseeing the bus routes and scheduling, in addition to the maintenance of the vehicles is Lulu Hamilton.

Afternoons, the 16-passenger van and the 20-seat bus, take their charges to the Glades Central High School cafeteria for a hot meal under the auspices of the Palm Beach County Nutrition Program, and an hour or two of games and socializing.

Other days, the vans head for the center itself where Effie McNair and her staff have arranged a recreational or educational program.

The programs range from films supplied by the Belle Glade Library to speakers from various agencies who advise the senior citizens on such subjects as social security changes, food stamp procedures, fire and police safety.

One group is learning to read and write, reports Mrs. McNair, who began working at the center in 1977 and now serves as a site manager, overseeing both the recreational program and the Friendly Visitors project.

The Friendly Visitors and the Homemaker Service, under the supervision of Keith Babb, CCE coordinator, serve the needs of the homebound clients.

Working with both volunteer and paid staff members, the two services fill the needs of elderly people who live alone and are unable to cope on their own.

The Visitors fill temporary needs but both groups offer parallel services, doing light housekeeping chores, cooking a meal, doing the laundry, offering some companionship, shopping and running errands.

"The purpose," explains Babb, "is to enable the ill or disabled individual to remain at home in familiar surroundings whenever possible."

It also permits some to cut down the length of a hospital stay at times, reducing the financial burden and freeing needed beds in hospitals or nursing homes, he adds.

"We try to prevent institutionalizing people. Sometimes they'd be better off in an institution, but the majority would rather be at home."

Another service under Babb is called "Chore" and it provides yard care and simple home repairs in addition to doing heavier household work.

As well as attempting to provide for the needs of any moving machinery.

But after looking back over last year's horoscope I've learned I spent a total 237 hours waiting by the phone for long lost friends or once in a lifetime opportunities. Neither of which either phoned or wrote.

On days I was forewarned to relax and take it easy, the boss's horoscope called for one of those "start early to accomplish a lot" days. Those days led to more threats of bodily injury than moving machinery did.

Naturally, I've tried some alternatives. Such as burning the entrails of a fowl at dawn to give me prophecies I got came from the happen if I tried that again. I'm already too full of don't's.

I've tried bedrest, plenty of liquor I think that's for some other ailment.

Even the good old-fashioned advice a little common sense, and have because according to my zodiac forecast. That sounds like I'm a fool.

The only things I really can still topics my horoscope never touches.

Anyway, to whom it may concern my hand. But while I'm waiting U cards until the telephone rings or the gical answering service contacts me

Her mother bedridden, her father hospitalized and her husband an invalid — all of them in her care — Lois Mullis of Pahokee depends on the Respite program to relieve her for a few hours at a time. Keith Babb, CCE coordinator, stops at the Mullis home to review her needs and if they are being met.

A game of Bingo and an hour of socializing break up the day for mobile senior citizens shown at the Glades Central High School cafeteria where they also receive a hot meal through the Palm Beach County Nutritional Program.

Mary Thornton, right, serves four days as a paid Homemaker and the fifth day as a volunteer, as well as meeting the needs of her own five daughters. Julia Mae Lee, 89, has days she "just can't get out of bed." Julia Mae and Leon Taylor were farm workers in their younger days. Now both are confined to home by their infirmities.

To whom it may concern: I have come to the conclusion that my horoscope is a crock. And since I can no longer depend on the stars, I find myself temporarily without direction.

Although I don't have any guarantee of paradise either here or hereafter, could you at least send someone to hold my hand? An unemployed Samaritan or even a celestial travel agent, maybe?

It's not that I am overwhelmed with disappointment. After all, I survived earlier disillusionments like Santa Claus, the tooth fairy, the US government and its currency, not to mention both the Republicans and Democrats.

But I am momentarily at odds. I always believed if I had all my cosmic ducks in a row I could lead a zippety-do-dah life. But "to the stars through difficulty" just isn't working out.

I merely ask that when I arise each day, I can know that if I get an early start things will go well, or that I should stay home because a long lost friend is going to call or just because I should stay away from the elderly themselves, CCE also aids in trying to cope with the problems of a relative living with them.

The daily phone calls of Annie Boldin, telephone center, let 67 homebound elderly know that they can help them if they need it. Most of the people who call in person, she says.

A pause for a bit of conversation is welcome. Boyd Phillips just as much as the sweeping tidying job Sonja Corbett of Friendly Visitors doing in his Okeechobee Center house. Victim of a stroke, Phillips relies on Operation Concern to the grocery store and visits to the CCE center he can watch television.

Project "Respite," for example, provides someone to stay temporarily with a homebound elderly patient. In Pahokee, Mrs. Morgan Mullis is the care of three invalids — her husband and parents. While Mr. Mullis is able to move, Mrs. Mullis's mother is bedridden. Her father is presently confined in Everglades Medical Hospital. If it weren't for the Respite service, she would be unable to leave home to visit her father.

Today your boy's world is a wonderful place of trees and blue sky, puppy dogs and best friends. Perhaps his greatest decision is which tree to climb and how high to go.

But it won't always be so. As he grows, his choices must grow in scope and seriousness also.

Just as you today can't choose for him which tree to climb and how high; so also, as he grows in wisdom and stature, you cannot choose for him the proper values and goals for his life. But you can guide and direct him: in the ways you have found to be good and right.

Attend the church or synagogue of your choice and take your child with you.

Taking It From the Top

By REV. DAVID T. EVANS
Everglades Presbyterian Church

The Church of Jesus Christ, the risen Lord, had grown and spread around the Roman Empire. There were many who were proclaiming the Good News of God in Jesus Christ.

The Apostle Paul came to Ephesus. There he found some disciples and he asked them, "Did you receive the Holy Spirit when you believed?"

From the time of the emergence of the Church at Pentecost the Holy Spirit has been promised to believers. Just before His ascension Jesus said, "you shall receive power when the Holy Spirit has come upon you, and you shall be my witnesses." The disciples at Ephesus had to answer Paul no, that they had not received the Holy Spirit. This meant that they had not received power and were unable to witness effectively.

The Holy Spirit was a part of the equipment of the believers of the early Church. Peter and John went to Samaria and when they found that the believers had not received the Holy Spirit, "They laid their hands upon them and they received the Holy Spirit." Acts 8:17.

Those who received the Holy Spirit were effective witnesses for Christ. The Holy Spirit is the agent of regeneration and conversion.

Not only does the Holy Spirit give power to the witness of Christ, but He also guides the one speaking for Christ. It is the Holy Spirit who changes the heart of the hearer of the Gospel.

The Holy Spirit is the power of the Church for combating the work of the Devil. The Holy Spirit works continually to purify the Church and keep it on the course of fulfilling Christ's commission.

The Holy Spirit is the strength of Christ in individuals also. He guides us and enables us to do all things in Christ. It is the Holy Spirit who enables us not only to accept Christ but also to live as He would want us to live.

From the above we see that the possession of the Holy Spirit is normative and necessary for the Church and the individual. The Church and each of us need the Holy Spirit.

Today the Holy Spirit has been contained by the majority of the Churches. The power must be allowed to flow through the Church as a whole and in our lives.

The power which is developed in a hydro-electric plant is only potential until it is tapped and used. The power which is given to us at baptism is only potential until we tap it and make us of it.

The Holy Spirit is given to us until Christ returns. Jesus tells us how important He is to us. John 14:26: "I have told you all this while I am still here with you; but your Advocate, the Holy Spirit whom the Father will send in my name, will teach you everything, and will call to mind all that I have told you."

We need to be reminded. Advertisers spend millions of dollars reminding us of their products. With so many things on our minds and the many things we are trying to do, we need the Holy Spirit to jog our memories so that we do not forget what is meaningful to Christians.

Let the Spirit work in your life so that your words and actions witness to the risen Lord.

Have you received the Spirit? If yes, let Him work in order that the power of Christ may be seen in your life! If no, let Him change your life so that it is meaningful.

Do you have the Spirit? Accept God as Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, and the Spirit will come upon you. The Holy Spirit will then become a dominant, positive power for the good in your life and for Christ.

Operation Concern Project

Operation Concern buses are a familiar sight in the Glades as they transport the elderly to do their shopping, keep medical appointments, and do other errands. One of two drivers, Angella Victoria, pauses by the bus after delivering her passengers to GCHS.

Elderly — from p. 13

"Mini Family Day Care" and provide home care where the only relative must work and the elderly relative is homebound.

The services directed by Babb were only started in March and they have quickly outgrown the available funding for this year. Beginning with 15 referrals, 60 people are now being served and Babb says there is a crucial need for volunteer help.

"Whether anyone can volunteer for an hour or for 40 hours, we need their help," says Babb and asks that prospective volunteers call him at 996-1771.

Funding for CCE is coordinated through the Gulfstream Area-wide Council on Aging which has been seeking additional funds from local communities and has requested help from both the Belle Glade and Pahokee city commissioners. Earlier this month, Belle Glade commissioners approved a $1,000 contribution.

Under the provisions of federal funding for programs for the elderly, anyone over the age of 60 is entitled to assistance without showing financial need. The purpose is the provide whatever help the aged need without restricting it to economic necessity.

Services are provided under the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services Division of the Aging which determines case needs and approves them.

Whether CCE staffers are paid or volunteer, they gain an extra measure of satisfaction in the gratitude expressed by those they serve.

As one senior citizen wrote, "Thanks a million for sending this lady to my rescue."

NEW YORK — Jim Gressinger of P. O. Box 850, Belle Glade is eligible to win a free trip to Scotland as a result of scoring a hole-in-one at the Lake Region Country Club.

Gressinger's ace qualified him for the 20th annual Rusty Nail Hole-in-One Sweepstakes, a national competition sponsored by the Drumblie Liqueur Company of Edinburgh, Scotland.

The winner will be announced early next year.
